SUPPORTING MEANINGFUL CHANGE

25 March 2020

We are here to continue supporting you to create meaningful change

We know that our clients are on the front lines of supporting the most vulnerable in society, and we are here to help you to provide ongoing services.

Southern Hemisphere has all the systems in place to work virtually.

We have been successfully running webinars, online meetings and workshops for a while now. We are taking our expert facilitation skills online, and can run virtual workshops, webinars and data collection.

In this way, we ensure our clients meet their objectives and commitments.

As an example, we ran our first online interactive evaluation planning workshop across three African countries on Friday, and the evaluation is on track! We now know we can facilitate a theory of change online in a participatory way. Most of our fieldwork can be conducted telephonically or using online communications. We can also mobilise our network of consultants across Africa and elsewhere.

We have been working on our online training modules and will be providing opportunities for you to keep up your monitoring, evaluation and learning skills soon. So if you are planning to upskill in the next few months, watch this space.

Our face-to-face public training calendar has been suspended until further notice.

Internally, our office has gone virtual. We are connected to each other, to our clients and to our data virtually.

We have had a fairly smooth transition so that projects continue to run effectively. And in all of this, we remain hopeful and optimistic, remembering the kindness and resilience in all of us.

We are celebrating our 20th anniversary this year, and as an established business we know we will see this through and innovate to come out on top.

Let us know how our committed and skilled team can support your ongoing services so you can stay focused on your purpose. Contact Mo on info@southernhemisphere.co.za
